SOCIAL SECURITY

People who work homes as maids, baby-sit-ters, and companions, or who do "day work" for several housewives often don't know their rights under social security. "We talk to some of these folks every week," said Harry N. Scott, Manager of the Dothan Social Security Office, "and their stories are so alike we can almost recite them just the way they tell them to us." But the rule is simple. If a household employer receives at least $50 in cash wages in a calendar quarter, the housewife must report it. A woman 62 this year (1970) needs credit for 43/4 years of work to draw ; social security check. she has this on her recor because some of her employers reported her wages and paid social se-curity contributions, she will be entitled to social security benefits. But how much she gets depends on how much has been re-ported for her. The record may show only enough for her to get $44, the smallest monthly amount, when, according to what she was paid over the years, her check would be twice as high. Scott said social security will go all out to help the applicant set the record straight, but it's a very difficult situation. To establish the correct wages, a signed statement o amounts paid each calendar quarter must be obtained from the employer, if she can be found, and if she has records. Those are two great big "ifs."

"Many house - holders cooperate, but many don't," he said. The majority don't knowlingly break the law. They are just unaware of it. There just unaware of it. There are hundreds of thousands of new householders each year, hiring domestic help for the first time. They're hard to reach as a group, but we are making constan efforts to do so. This points up some important things that must be done to avoid these situations. The domestic houseworker herself is in the best position to protect herself. First, she should make certain the housewife makes a record of her name and socia security amount number Second, she ought to know herself that if she is paid as little as $4 cash wages a week and works regularl each week, then her wage are covered under socia security and they must be reported by the housewife
